Green

Recommended

To provide a strong lead and sense of percussive bass rhythm with an acoustic guitar, we generally recommend you try to play the song low down on the guitar neck unless you specifically want to play high. Playing up high towards the sound hole can create a nice mandolin style effect but make sure that another instrument is carrying the bass otherwise the song could sound 'thin'

Black

Ok to play in this position but could sound fuller using another set of shapes and capo position.

Red

Not recommended

Unless you want to create a high sounding guitar part perhaps for a gentle song, a mandolin style part or for doubling a part with another acoustic already playing low you may find the chord positions difficult to get to with this key/capo combination especially if your guitar does not have a cutaway.
